Read the following passage, then answer the questions:

How often do you use the internet for school projects and to help with your homework? Some students don't think about where information comes from online. This can be risky because there is a lot of information on the internet which is false, It is important to remember to use websites that you can trust.

You should also think about when the information on the website was written. When you are researching history, the information can be old, but it can still be accurate. However, if you are looking for something about science and technology or the latest news, you should check the date on the website.

It is important to look for the most recent information. Paying attention to the website address is also helpful. If the site is from a government or somewhere like a university, the address finishes "gov" or "edu". You can trust these sites. Finally, good websites usually include links to other sites on similar topics. This means you can check the information in more than one place.

Read the following passage, then answer the questions:

As I put my key into the keyhole, the door slid open. I left my house at about ten this morning after I had locked the door well. It immediately dawned on me that someone had broken into the house and the first thing I thought of doing was to call on my neighbour Mr. Hassan.

As soon as we got into the hall, we found that everything was in a terrible mess. There could be no doubt that the burglar had left nothing untouched. Before going on to inspect the rest of the house, I called the police.

Then we went into my bedroom. All my clothes were thrown all over the bed and the floor. The police officers arrived a few minutes later and made a thorough search and declared that the burglar must have been quite experienced for he had even ransacked the kitchen cupboards. It would take me at least two day's hard work to find out whether anything had been stolen. Fortunately, I never used to leave money in the house and the only thing that they could have taken would be my watch which I had left in the bathroom. We all went to the bathroom only to find the watch there. Mr Hassan remarked that burglars never imagined they could possibly find anything valuable in a bathroom.

Read the following passage, then answer the questions:

Have you ever heard that a wealthy person died of hunger? I was shocked when I read a very impressive story about a very rich man. That man had a huge wealth and a vast palace. He used to leave this family in their usual house to spend a few days every month alone in his palace to plan for his coming businesses and count his increasing money. He used to keep his money in an enormous room in the palace. Once, he closed the room without realising that he had left the key out. After so many hours, he began to feel hungry and wanted to go out to have something to eat, but he found out his terrible mistake. That room had no handle to be opened from inside and the immense size of the palace prevented the man's cries from reaching anyone outside. He tried very hard to open the metal door but in vain. Days and nights passed while he was starving. Finally, he became sure he would die, so he injured his finger and used his blood to write the moral of that awful situation on the wall. He wrote, "The richest man in America died of starvation." I started to think differently about the benefits of being rich; having a family is far more important.

Before I introduced my friend to Mr Said, his eyes fell on one of the books, which was lying on the table. Shady at once said that the author of the book was one of his relatives, and started telling stories about the adventures they had together. Mr Said kept on listening with interest. He asked my friend Shady if he could recognise Mr Said if he saw him. My friend assured him he would. With a loud laugh.
