Psychologists said that it was very easy for a child to get swayed by peer pressure into choosing a career that the majority was opting rather than the one which was best for him/her. Although it should not be the most important, remuneration of a career holds value in one's life; nobody likes to earn little. A job's earnings should match the child's aspirations and provide a satisfying comfortable life. Modern societies need professionals in every field: utility workers, garbage collectors, farmers, nurses, doctors, engineers, teachers, professors and many others. Furthermore, demotivation might have a negative impact on the child's mental health when rejecting all of his/her ideas.

The pursuit of success will make you succeed in the end, no matter how long the period is, but keep trying. Failure is a great teacher in life. It teaches us humility and how to correct our course of life. A great example is Thomas Edison. He failed many times, but he did not give up until he succeeded. Even when he failed, Edison learned something. 'I get results in everything I try,' he said. The golden rule for everybody is to be honest, trustful, useful and generous so that they leave life with a trace that those around them will not forget about.

Success is no accident. It is hard work, perseverance, learning, studying, sacrifice and most of all, love of what you are doing or learning to do. Success, by definition, means to accomplish your goals. Some people define success by measures such as wealth, position or status and one's capabilities. It is also believed by many people that a successful person must be rich, but in many cases, money cannot buy you success. In fact, there are some factors which help us be successful. Start by setting your goals. Having a goal is an essential thing, but it should be a smart goal which is achievable. It requires to stretch your capabilities and to stay committed and remind yourself that it is not the end of the road. One step more, if there was only one secret to success, it would be preparation. It will set you in the best position to execute the task with the least difficulty. Timing also is a crucial ingredient to success.

B- Choose the correct answer , Put true or false. (60 M)

One of the most destructive moments in our lives is failure. When we work hard and keep faith with clear heart and soul to accomplish something and fail, it will surely have negative consequences for our lives. When we fail, life turns upside down. Everything seems to disappear into thin air. However, most people don't realise that failure acts as a stepping-stone towards success. They don't know that we can learn more about our lives when we fail. Throughout history, there have been many famous people who had once the greatest failures in their lives, but later they could learn from their experience and were able to reach the top. Thomas Edison is by far one of the most famous inventors in history. He holds 1,093 patents to his name. However, when attempting to invent a commercially-viable electric lightbulb, he failed over 10,000 times

In ancient times, people used to cure sickness by using plants, herbs and other materials. In countries such as Egypt, Greece, Rome, Mesopotamia, India and China, medicine was magical and mythological and diseases were attributed mostly to the supernatural forces. Thus, before hospitals developed, patients were treated mostly in temples. The practice of medicine during the Middle Ages was empirical; it focused mainly on curing illnesses rather than discovering their causes. At that time, cures continued to be a mixture of superstitions, religion, herbal remedies, bleeding and purging; people were bled to reduce inflammation which was then thought to be the root of all diseases.

The inventions of the Scottish engineer James Watt gave rise to the modern mechanical engineering, which opened the door wide for the development of specialized machinery and their maintenance tools during the Industrial Revolution and led to the rapid growth of mechanical engineering in its native Britain and abroad. Chemical engineering, like mechanical engineering, developed in the nineteenth century during the Industrial Revolution. The work of James Maxwell and Heinrich Hertz in the late nineteenth century gave birth to the field of electronics and electrical engineering. Today, aeronautical engineering deals with aircraft design; this field of engineering has been growing day after day to allow humans make their dreams come true to invade the outer space by designing better spaceship. Finally, with the advent of computer technology in the 1990's, the first search engine was built by the computer engineer Alan Emtage. The brilliant minds of engineers are still creating whatever it takes to elevate our world to make it a better place to live.

Medical devices can be divided into two parts, diagnostic medical devices, most notably the ultrasound device, and medical therapeutic devices used in chemical treatments. Another classification includes three categories. Firstly, we have simple devices such as bandages, body temperature meters and others. There are also more complex devices that require a certain amount of caution, such as those that emit X-rays. Finally, there are those which require a deep study before their use, such as the valves used in the artificial heart, in addition to the artificial joints. In short, it is certain that this new branch of engineering has improved healthcare to a great extent. Furthermore, the design process is better as a result of new technology with 3D printing being the most favoured new tool. Nowadays biomedical engineers are able to develop new procedures using knowledge from many technical sources; or conduct research needed to solve clinical problems

A- Read the following text, then choose the correct answer a, b, c or d: (60 marks)

Human rights are the rights which one acquires by being alive, while civil rights are the rights that one obtains by being a legal member of a certain political life. In other words, civil rights are the rights of citizens to political and social freedom and equality. They guarantee equal social opportunities and equal protection under the law, regardless of race, religion, or other personal characteristics. Civil rights are a class of rights that protect individuals' freedom from violation by governments, social organizations, and private individuals. They ensure one's right to participate in the civil and political life of society and the state without discrimination or repression. Unlike other rights concepts, such as human rights or natural rights, in which people acquire rights inherently, perhaps from God or nature, civil rights must be given and guaranteed by the power of the state. Examples of civil rights include the right to vote, the right to a fair trial, the right to government services, the right to a public education, and the right to use public facilities. Civil rights are an essential component of democracy; when individuals are prevented from participating in political society, their civil rights are being denied. Civil rights are secured by positive government action, often in the form of legislation.

civil rights must be given and guaranteed by the power of the state. Examples of civil rights include the right to vote, the right to a fair trial, the right to government services, the right to a public education, and the right to use public facilities. Civil rights are an essential component of democracy; when individuals are prevented from participating in political society, their civil rights are being denied. In contrast to civil liberties, which are freedoms that are secured by placing restraints on government, civil rights are secured by positive government action, often in the form of legislation. Civil rights laws attempt to guarantee full and equal citizenship for people who have traditionally been discriminated against on the basis of some characteristics.

- Civil rights don't include the right to vote
- Civil rights are similar to human rights .
- Negative government actions guarantee civil rights.
- Civil rights guarantee full citizenship only.
- Democracy cannot be achieved without achieving civil rights .
- Civil rights are not important in the life of the individual .

UNICEF was created in 1946 and began with a definite mission of providing emergency food and healthcare to children in the countries that had been destroyed by World War II. In 1953, its original name was changed to the United Nation's Children Fund to reflect its broader mission, but it retained the original acronym, after being officially adopted as a permanent branch of the UN in 1954. The agency is among the most widespread and recognisable social welfare organisations in the world. Though its headquarters are in New York City, it operates in over 190 countries, focusing on the welfare of children in at-risk areas. Since 2006, the organisation has concentrated on a few specific issues; child survival and development, basic education and gender equality, child protection and policy advocacy, and partnerships.

Antibiotics are powerful medicine used to fight a wide variety of infections caused by bacteria in people and animals. Antibiotics work to kill the bacteria or stop them from multiplying. Before bacteria can multiply and cause symptoms, the immune system can typically kill them. Sometimes, however, the number of harmful bacteria is excessive, and the immune system can't fight all. At that point, antibiotics are urgently needed. Antibiotics that affect a wide range of bacteria are called broad spectrum antibiotics like amoxicillin whereas antibiotics that kill bacteria and affect only a few types of bacteria are called narrow spectrum antibiotics such as penicillin. Some people may develop an allergic reaction to antibiotics, especially penicillin. Side effect might include rash and swelling of the tongue and face. The more often antibiotics are taken incorrectly, the more chenee bacteria have to change and become resistant to them. Patients should complete the whole course of medication to prevent the return of the inflection. Although new medicines are developed, antibiotics resistance will remain a major threat.

The Syrian nationality is determined predominantly by paternity (father). The place of birth is irrelevant, and being born in Syria does not grant an automatic right to Syrian nationality. Birth to a Syrian mother does not automatically confer nationality. If a Syrian woman marries a foreign husband, their children will have the foreign husband's nationality and have no claim to Syrian nationality, even if they were born and raised in Syria. The legal ramifications are that these persons face a number of obstacles, one of which is their inability to work in the public sector. It is also harder and more restrictive for foreigners to own real estate in Syria.

- Who gives nationality in Syria?
  - Father
  - Son
  - Mother

It is true that children are often well motivated to learn. It can generally be observed that children are better at learning than adults. They will start learning how to play a musical instrument for example more than a parent and are more likely to continue in mastering it. It seems that while children have the determination to practice, adults are less patient. In addition, adults have more commitments than the young, so perhaps they lack the time to persist with their studies. However, if it were true that it is only the pace of life that prevents our learning capacity, this would imply that the busier we are, the less likely we would be to take up new interests. In fact, this is not generally the case. To sum up, enthusiasm for learning new things seems to be dependent on the individual himself, not on his lifestyle. In fact, it is common to find people who lead active lives or have demanding jobs taking up hobbies and other activities as well.

- Children are more patient to learn new things than adults.
- Adults usually don't have enough time to continue with their learning activities.
- Having interests in starting new hobbies depends on one's lifestyle.
- Busy people can't practice any hobbies.
- The younger you are, the more motivation you have to learn.
- The text discusses the idea of how parents affect their children's future careers.

Culture shock is an experience people may have when they move to a foreign country with a new cultural environment, which is different from their own. These unfamiliar surroundings can lead to a feeling of being a little bit lost. For example, when a student starts studying abroad, he/she experiences different things in custom, dress and food. There are many symptoms of transition shock including: anger, boredom, extreme homesickness, eating disturbances and excessive critical reactions to host culture. Sometimes the symptoms last just few days, but more often they last weeks or even months. People experiencing culture shock usually move through four stages

Not all cultures share the same beliefs and values about what is normal or socially acceptable. These differences can cause sever culture shock. Once a person accepts the differences and acknowledge it, then the process of integration becomes easier. Here are some examples of situations that can cause food culture shock: in some Chinese restaurants, earing chicken feet is common, although not an everyday food item, horse meat and blood sausage are normal in France. Some restaurants in ancient culture specialized in dog meat dishes. However, recently in Cambodia, animal rights activists have gained a small victory in their effort to end the trade in dog meat. To overcome food culture shock, here are some tips: first, expect food to be different. Second, we don't have to eat strange things quickly. Third, use good judgment and don't insult people by making disgusted facial expressions.

- Culture shock has no effect on people.
- Horse meat in considered a daily meal in France.
- Animal rights activists in Cambodia felled to apply a law against dog meat trade
- Eating unfamiliar food slowly is a way of dealing with culture shock.
- Approving the differences between cultures makes life abroad less difficult.

Artificial Intelligence (AI) is the branch of science and engineering specialised in making clever machines, capable of thinking and imitating human-level intelligence. One of the primary targets of AI field is to produce fully intelligent agents that interact with the surroundings and conduct human-like behaviours. These agents are tools, having the ability to judge matter and differentiate what is wrong. The field has started with robots, which can sense and react to the world around them. They also cover purely softwarebased agents, which can be actuated with natural language and multimedia. Currently, the field expands to driving, aviation, medicine, online advertising, image recognition, and personal assistance. The AI field is based on computer science, information engineering, mathematics, psychology, linguistics, philosophy and many other fields. The first spark started in the year 1950, when a test of the ability of a machine to exhibit intelligent behaviour equivalent to that of a human was done.

Robots could never replace some jobs such as doctors and teachers, because some jobs like teaching need human connection and creativity. Scientist predict that in the future we will have robots teachers. Robots will do the main job of transferring information and teachers will be like assistants. Intelligent robots will read student's faces, movements and maybe even brain signals. Then, they will adopt the information to each student. However, it's unlikely that robots will ever have empathy and the ability to really connect with humans like human can. In some parts of the world, there aren't enough teachers. That problem could be partly solved by robots, because they can teach anywhere and won't get stressed or tired. If robots could cut the time teachers spend marking homework and writing reports. Teachers would have more time and energy for the parts of the job humans do best.

- Doctors and teachers can be replaced by robots very easily.
- Some jobs like teaching need connection and creativity
- Intelligent robots will certainly have empathy.
- Robots teacher will be the best solution for places where there aren't enough teachers.
- Robots can't help teachers with homework and writing reports.
- All people can use robots.

One day, an unemployed man went to apply for a job with Microsoft as a cleaner. The manager said, "Let me have your e-mail address, so that I can send you a form to complete and tell you when you can start." The man said that he had no computer or email address. The manager said, "Well, then, that means that you virtually don't exist and therefore can't be employed." The man looked at the last 10£ in his wallet and thought of buying tomatoes in bulk. Within less than 2 hours, he sold all the tomatoes at 100% profit. Repeating the process several times that day, he ended up with almost 100£ before going to sleep that night.
