On March 27, 2013, John Sweeney, a plumber from Ireland, started a Facebook page called Suspended Coffees.

His message was simple: Buy a cup of coffee for a stranger, because an act of kindness can change a life and make a difference.

Eight hours later, the page attracted more than 20,000 likes.

Suspended coffee is a tradition that comes from Naples, Italy, and dates back to the 20th century.

When customers buy coffee, they also pay in advance for a cup of coffee to be given to somebody else who couldn't afford it.

This initiative was forgotten, but then it revived again in 2011. That's when "Suspended Coffee Day" started to be celebrated each December.

You can buy it for anyone in need, for a homeless person, stressed student, a mother of children who can't afford coffee, or a well-dressed man who is in his third month of job hunting.

"Blessing Boxes" are special boxes that help people who need help. Nobody knows exactly who the first person was that started this initiative. Many people around the world have blessing boxes near their houses and they have started Facebook pages about them.

Darlene Baumunk from the United States saw that some people in her street didn't have enough food, so she built a small box and put it outside her home. She filled it with food, soap, and many other things that people need.

She wanted to make it easy for anyone who needs help to take what they need without asking.

Her message was simple: Take what you need, give what you can, so people who have extra things can leave items in the box, and people who need help can take what they need without anyone asking questions.

Blessing Boxes can be found in many parts of the world. They are open 24 hours a day, 7 days a week, so people can get help anytime.
