Write a paragraph about people rights and duties in society.

الحقوق والواجبات في المجتمع

people in society have rights as well as duties. A person's rights are protected by the government such as; the right to vote, the right to public services and the right to government services. Duties, on the other hand, are the responsibility of society. In fact, social organizations and schools should educate people about their duties towards each other, the government and their nation. In my opinion, all citizens must be given their rights fairly and they should be well-educated about their duties.

The government's efforts in Syria to improve education.

جهود الحكومة في سوريا لتطوير التعليم

The Syrian government is working hard to improve education at schools. It is building more schools and employing new teachers. All children have the right to free education. They have the right to equal opportunities and to participate in school activities. Going to school for basic education pupils is compulsory. Public and private schools work together to improve education. In addition to schools, students can benefit from online education. The importance of law in people live. أهمية القانوني في حياة الناس.

Law plays a key role in the development of society. It protects individuals' rights and without laws, there would be no order or security. Parents and teachers should teach children to obey laws. Teachers should make sure that children follow school rules. Parents can set rules at home for children to follow. People who don't obey law should be punished. I think that obeying laws starts at school and home because this prepares them to follow the rules of society.

People usually use the right hand for greeting, eating and offering things. People usually invite others for food and when you are invited, you should arrive on time. Some visitors have the misconception that people here are violent and have strong opinions, but they are friendly and welcoming. People like their customs and don't want to change them.
